

Collaborative Estimation - Workshop

Expand your estimation skills!

Knowledge building

Collaborative Estimation builds upon the concept and game Estimation Poker - where teams estimate the relative effort required to do certain work items (stories) in a project or for product development.

This workshop in Collaborative Estimation equips participants to not only focus on effort estimation - but how to establish a sound knowledge-building routine covering all aspects of a story: the inherent complexity, monetary cost and most importantly the value of creating it.

Public workshop	90 min (2 x 45 min.)	Per participant	49,00 € ex. VAT
Team workshop	90 min (2 x 45 min.)	6 to 12 participants	299,00 € total ex. VAT

Including stakeholders

Value estimations are predictions about how important or valuable it would be to create a certain feature or work item. These are immensely valuable to attain from both team members and stakeholders. The discussion often brings to light blind angles or hidden details and provides crucial information to those who have to prioritize.

Experience for yourself what value estimation does for your collective understanding of a product.

Online workshops

We offer public, online workshops that include the following:

- A theoretical introduction to collaborative estimation, its origin, validation and inspirational sources.
- A discussion of effort, value, complexity and cost estimation including how each type contributes to the collective knowledge-building effort.
- Engaging Value and Complexity estimation exercises in Cool Estimation.
- Discussion about the team's estimation needs, how to involve stakeholders and customers etc.

Increase your team and stakeholders' estimation skills and experience for yourself how a game-based approach to estimating aids prioritization and knowledge build-up over time.
